

Looking forward to 2010

For many people, this past year was filled with hope for a new future while managing to stay afloat in the tides of a financial meltdown. Unfortunately, time marches on, and the world does not stop for a financial mess. So, too, a surefire way to stay afloat is to stay in touch with your network of trusted advisors who have proven to many to be a financial and legal lifeboat.

Changes in Federal and Arizona Law and Policy

At the federal level, 2009 brought significant tax changes such as the increase in the estate tax exemption to 3.5 million dollars under the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (EGTRRA) and the increase in the amount of the gift tax exclusion to $13,000.

In Arizona, the Rules of Probate Procedure and the Arizona Trust Code were adopted as of January 1, 2009. From these changes, probates of Arizona estates have become laden with more paperwork and responsibility for personal representatives. By contrast, the administration of trusts under the new Trust Code has provided greater clarity for fiduciaries, trustees and attorneys alike. This has helped the administrative process become more streamlined.

As the political tides in Washington D.C. have changed, we've have seen the fall of the dollar, troubled Americans at townhall meetings, and the potential for increase in estate and income taxes needed to pay for government spending. It is not a secret that the local governments, including the State of Arizona and its Medicaid (ALTCS) program, have fallen into the bottomless pit of the sinking economy. The results of Arizona's problems are now being seen clearly - Medicaid is becoming more difficult for the average Arizonan to obtain without competent professional assistance.

Expected Changes in 2010 and what you should do?

So what exactly can one expect to happen in 2010? There may come to pass the ever-changing Nationalized Health Care legislation; this will affect millions on Medicare, Social Security, Medicaid and the everyday resident of this country.

It is certain that the estate tax (and other income tax benefits) slated to disappear in 2010 will not stand for long. Taxes collected from decedent's estates are a sure pot of gold for the federal government.

There is nothing we can do about the economy. There is one action you can take - cultivate your relationship with your trusted advisors including your attorney, accountant and financial planner. If you have not yet reviewed your estate plan including your trust, take the time now to review how your estate plan works and what you will need to do to carefully plan for estate tax and elder law issues. Nothing is better than a good review of the assets in your trust to save time and money when you eventually pass away.

ATTENTION CLIENTS: Our Gift to you...

Estate Planning Attorney, Larry Deason of the Deason Law Firm recently published an estate planning book entitled "Estate Planning Answers in Arizona – 39 Questions About Estate Planning." Deason co-authored the book with nationally known estate planning attorneys Robert Armstrong and Sanford M. Fisch, founders of the American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys.

"Our world is becoming more complicated by the day and it is difficult for consumers to know what type of planning is most appropriate for their family," explains Deason. "The book was created to take confusing planning concepts and make them easy to understand. Written in a practical question and answer format, it will give consumers greater knowledge and allow them to make better decisions that will impact their families for generations to come."
